Notes

Numbers in the tables may not sum to totals because of rounding.

In separate versions of this report, the public laws in the appendixes are displayed in one of three ways: by House authorizing committee, by Senate authorizing committee, and by appropriations subcommittee. Each entry is listed once in each report, generally under the primary committee to which the bill was referred.

Expired and Expiring Authorizations of Appropriations

Overview

Authorizations of appropriations are provisions that authorize funds to be provided through a future appropriation law to carry out a program or function. They are different from appropriations, which provide funding once those authorizations are in place. Each year, the Congressional Budget Office reports to the Congress on the following:

- All programs and activities funded for the current fiscal year for which the authorizations of appropriations have expired, and
- All programs and activities for which the authorizations of appropriations will expire during the current fiscal year.

The requirement for the report is specified in section 202(e)(3) of the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974.[1]

The Role of Authorizations

The term authorization is used to describe two types of laws. The first are organic or enabling statutes (those terms are used interchangeably in this report), which create a federal agency, establish a federal program, prescribe a federal function, or provide for a particular federal obligation or expenditure within a program. Such an authorization may allow a federal agency, program, or function to continue indefinitely or for a specific period. It may provide an agency with the authority to obligate and spend federal funds in the form of direct, or mandatory, spending, or it may simply specify a purpose for which a subsequent appropriation may be made available.

This report, however, focuses on the second type: authorizations of appropriations that authorize the appropriation of funds (generally providing discretionary funding) to carry out a program or function established in an enabling statute. An authorization of appropriations constitutes guidance to the Congress about the funding that may be necessary to implement an enabling statute; it may be contained in that enabling statute or provided separately. An authorization of appropriations may be annual, multiyear, or permanent. Such an authorization also may be definite or indefinite: It may authorize a specific amount or "such sums as may be necessary." In either case, CBO refers to it as an explicit authorization.

House and Senate rules dating from the 19th century restrict the consideration of an appropriation if it lacks an authorization of appropriations.[2] Whether an appropriation lacks authorization and whether it is in violation of a House or Senate rule are determined by the Speaker of the House or the Presiding Officer of the Senate on the basis of advice from the relevant chamber's Office of the Parliamentarian. Although this report is intended to aid the Congress by identifying authorizations of appropriations that have already expired or will expire this year, it is not and should not be considered definitive with respect to the application of House or Senate rules.

The Scope of This Report

In general, House and Senate rules require the appropriations committees, in their reports on general appropriation bills, to identify any programs that are funded in the bills but lack an authorization—including programs for which an explicit authorization of appropriations has

See House Report 99-433 (December 10, 1985), p. 114, the conference report accompanying the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, which amended the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 to include the requirement for this report. The stated purpose of the requirement is "to help Congress use the early months of the year to adopt authorizing legislation that must be in place before the regular appropriation bills can be considered."

a. This column includes laws with expiring authorizations of appropriations for definite or indefinite amounts. The total is less than the sum of the entries because public laws containing authorizations of appropriations that are under the jurisdiction of more than one House committee are counted only once in the total.

b. Number of explicit authorizations of appropriations within the jurisdiction of each House committee that expire on or before September 30, 2018.

never been enacted. This CBO report, as specified by law, is narrower in scope: It covers only programs that at one time had an explicit authorization of appropriations and only programs for which that authorization of appropriations either has expired or is scheduled to expire this year. Many laws provide permanent authorizations of appropriations for certain programs. This report excludes such programs and authorizations of appropriations (as do the reports of the appropriations committees).

Even if an authorization of appropriations has expired, this report does not identify whether an enabling statute governing the relevant program or activity has expired. A permanent law may continue to set the policies and guidelines under which appropriations are obligated, but identifying whether such enabling statutes exist and whether they may have expired is not the focus of the law that mandates this report. Indeed, it would be virtually impossible to identify all instances of expiring authorities across all of the federal government's programs and activities.

The information in this report is drawn from CBO's Legislative Classification System, a database of nonpermanent and explicit authorizations of appropriations. It includes information from previously enacted public laws, up to and including all laws enacted during the first session of the 115th Congress.

CBO produces three versions of this report—all contain the same information but are organized differently. In the separate versions, the public laws in the appendixes are displayed in one of three ways: by House authorizing committee, by Senate authorizing committee, or by appropriations subcommittee. Each entry is listed once in each report, generally under the primary committee to which the bill was referred.

Listings of Expired or Expiring Authorizations of Appropriations

This report covers programs funded through the annual appropriation process that satisfy two conditions:

- At one time, the program had an explicit authorization of appropriations, and
- That authorization of appropriations has expired or will expire this year.

The listings in the appendixes include the number and name of the public law with the most recent authorization of appropriations, the last year in which the authorization was in effect, and the amount (definite or indefinite) of appropriations authorized in that year.

Listings in Appendix A

As of the publication of this report, none of the 12 regular appropriation acts had been signed into law for fiscal year 2018, so government programs and activities were operating under a temporary continuing resolution (Public Law 115-96, Division A) currently set to expire on January 19, 2018. Appendix A lists programs and activities for which the explicit authorization of appropriations has expired. In each case, CBO believes the program may be receiving funding under the current continuing resolution or may have received an appropriation in a recent fiscal year. If an authorization of appropriations is listed in the appendix, CBO does not have a compelling reason to believe that it has been permanently canceled or overtaken by other authorizations.

Listings in Appendix B

Appendix B identifies authorizations of appropriations that will expire at or before the end of fiscal year 2018. It shows the amounts authorized to be appropriated in 2018 for those programs and activities, not the amounts actually appropriated for that year.

This table shows only the committees that have jurisdiction over authorizations of appropriations expiring in 2018; therefore, not all appropriations subcommittees are included.

a. This column includes laws with expiring authorizations of appropriations for definite or indefinite amounts. The total is less than the sum of the entries because public laws containing authorizations of appropriations that are under the jurisdiction of more than one appropriations subcommittee are counted only once in the total.

b. Number of explicit authorizations of appropriations within the jurisdiction of each appropriations subcommittee that expire on or before September 30, 2018.

c. Amounts specified in statute, a conference report, or other legislative history. For the purposes of summation, authorizations of appropriations for indefinite amounts are counted as zero.

More than 185 authorizations of appropriations, totaling about $713 billion in fiscal year 2018, will expire on or before September 30, 2018 (see Table 1, Table 2, and Table 3). Most of that funding—about $692 billion—is from seven authorizations of appropriations in a single law, the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2018 (P.L. 115-91).[3] Typically, authorizations for defense funding are renewed annually. The next-largest source of expiring authorizations of appropriations in dollar terms is the Disaster Tax Relief and Airport and Airway Extension Act of 2017 (P.L. 115-63). Its five authorizations of appropriations, totaling over $8 billion, are set to expire before September 30, 2018. The law with the largest number of authorizations of appropriations set to expire this year is the Agricultural Act of 2014 (P.L. 113-79), which has more than 100 individual authorizations totaling over $2 billion. Also due to expire during fiscal year 2018 are certain authorizations of appropriations within the Violence Against Women Reauthorization Act of 2013 (P.L. 113-4), with 19 authorizations of appropriations totaling $569 million, and the Pandemic and All-Hazards Preparedness Reauthorization Act of 2013 (P.L. 113-5), with 11 authorizations of appropriations totaling over $2 billion.

Authorizations of Appropriations That Are Set to Expire by the End of Fiscal Year 2019

More than 90 authorizations of appropriations, totaling over $5 billion, are set to expire by the end of fiscal year 2019. Most of them, and the bulk of the amounts authorized to be appropriated, are contained within four pieces of legislation: the Older Americans Act Reauthorization Act of 2016 (P.L. 114-144), with 17 individual authorizations of appropriations totaling almost $2 billion; the Omnibus Public Land Management Act of 2009 (P.L. 111-11), with 16 authorizations of appropriations

3. Typically, the National Defense Authorization Act incorporates, by reference, tables including authorizations of appropriations for projects, programs, and activities to be funded from within broader categories of Department of Defense (DoD) spending. This report lists the authorizations of appropriations by major category of DoD spending, which number fewer than 10, instead of the individual projects, programs, and activities, which number in the thousands.

totaling over $180 million; the Water Resources Reform and Development Act of 2014 (P.L. 113-121), with 14 authorizations of appropriations totaling over $200 million; and the Department of Veterans Affairs Expiring Authorities Act of 2017 (P.L. 115-62), with 7 authorizations of appropriations totaling over $1 billion. This listing does not include authorizations of appropriations that have already expired or that will expire in fiscal year 2018.

About This Document

This report by the Congressional Budget Office satisfies the requirements of section 202(e)(3) of the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, as amended. The report is intended to assist the Congress by identifying authorizations of appropriations that have expired or that will expire this year. Previous editions of this annual report, until 2016 called Unauthorized Appropriations and Expiring Authorizations, are available at https://go.usa.gov/xnp7r.

The report was prepared by Joanna Capps, George McArdle, Justin Riordan, Mark Sanford, Esther Steinbock, and J'nell Blanco Suchy with guidance from Adam Wilson. Patt Watson of CBO and many staff members of Congressional committees provided assistance.

Theresa Gullo, Mark Hadley, and Robert Sunshine reviewed the report; Kate Kelly edited it; and Casey Labrack prepared it for publication. An electronic version is available on CBO's website, www.cbo.gov/publication/53444.
