S. 3044
Court Services and Offender Supervision Agency Interstate Supervision Act of 2002

As ordered reported by the Senate Committee on Governmental Affairs on October 9, 2002

S. 3044 would amend the National Capital Revitalization and Self-Government Improvement Act of 1997 to allow the Court Services and Offender Supervision Agency (CSOSA) for the District of Columbia to supervise parolees from other jurisdictions who choose to live in the District of Columbia and to arrange with other states for supervision of District of Columbia parolees who want to move elsewhere.

Under current law, CSOSA (a federal agency) supervises parolees from other jurisdictions who reside in the District of Columbia and also arranges for the supervision of parolees from the District of Columbia who move to other jurisdictions, although this role is not clearly stated in law. The legislation would clarify and codify CSOSA's authority to supervise parolees in the District of Columbia and to arrange for supervision of its parolees who reside outside of the District of Columbia.

CBO estimates that implementing this bill would have no significant effect on federal spending because the bill would codify CSOSA's existing practices. Enacting S. 3044 would not affect direct spending or revenues of the federal government. The bill contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act and would not affect the budgets of state, local, or tribal governments.
