H.R. 1103 would require the Secretary of State to determine whether the Hong Kong Economic and Trade Offices (HKETO) still qualify for the special privileges granted under the International Organization Immunities Act, including tax exemptions and immunity from some judicial processes. The bill would also prohibit new contracts between U.S. government entities and HKETO unless certain conditions are met.

Under current law, the Secretary of State is required to annually certify that entities from Hong Kong, including HKETO, remain eligible for any special treatments granted under U.S. law prior to July 1997. The department may also change its determination for eligibility more frequently than annually if circumstances change in Hong Kong. Given that existing requirement, CBO expects that H.R. 1103 would not increase the likelihood that the Department of State will revoke eligibility for those privileges. Thus, in CBO's estimation, enacting the bill would not affect revenues or direct spending over the 2024-2033 period.

H.R. 1103 also would require the department to produce a report that justifies the Secretary's decision regarding eligibility for privileges. Using information about similar reports, CBO estimates that satisfying that requirement would cost less than $500,000 over the 2024-2028 period; any spending would be subject to the availability of appropriated funds.

On August 3, 2023, CBO transmitted a cost estimate for S. 490, the Hong Kong Economic and Trade Office (HKETO) Certification Act, as reported by the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations on July 25, 2023. H.R. 1103 is similar to S. 490, and CBO's estimates of their budgetary effects are the same.

The CBO staff contact for this estimate is Emma Uebelhor. The estimate was reviewed by Christina Hawley Anthony, Deputy Director of Budget Analysis.
